On the 17th Sept., at No. 6, Mosque Torreco, Mrs. Gro. D. PITMAN, of application [1549]

Honorono, Suprember 1874, 1873;

WE extract from a home paper some pertingut remarks with reference to the inconveniences to commerce which result from the absence of any suitable coin in China, and concluding with a suggestion that, when the Treaty is next revised, it should be made comjulsory for the Chinese Government to issue. a reliable coinage, which would greatly facili tate commercial operations. A not un deserved cut is given at Hongkong for the feebleness of the effort which was made here to keep the Mint going. How it came to pass that the establishment was so readily abandoned, is apparently not exactly known but the chief mistake which was made in connection with it, appears to have been no ' making sufficient allowance for the opposition which an enterprise of that character was certain to evoke on the part of the Chinese in the Colony. The new dollars could not be chopped, and thus a well established source of illegitimate gains to shroffs and compradores was at once put an end to. This was of itself sufficient to cause great opposition to the new coinage, to say nothing of the invariable habit of the Chinese to combine to oppose any new coin which is introduced. This has proved to bothe case with every new dollar that has come to these parts, and the same kind of thing might reasonably have been anticipated with regards to the Hongkong dollar. Unfortunately, these circumstances do not appear to have been taken into sufficient account; and the attempt to establish a Mint here was thus abandoned somewhat hastily on the appearance of the Chenny a foon, No. 4, with gambling in First for mercy, but was sent to two months' hard first difficulties. No doubt, it is not an easy matter to establish a coinage in China, but -the Hongkong dollar really had no chance, eighter in the Colony or in the country, and its want here is every year more felt. It may he hoped that the suggestion as to taking some steps in the matter on the revision of cash were picked up, and others picked up some handslip near Wanchi, where he was diguine the Treaty will be adopted. It is probably one of the most curious posed to being in company with last witness illustrations of the peculiar defectiveness o Chinese civilization that so eminently commercial a nation should never have been able to establish any other coin than copper each, The cause is no doubt to be found in the want of confidence in the Government, who repeatedly debased such coins cas it was Deave's watel, at the joss-house, but was fire at 4.45, at the Magistracy. great extent. Another reason is probably $200. The second defendant had been in good to send away the body, the Inspector in charged the difficulty of preventing forgeries of since on several occasions, once for physics at sent away the jury also. There are no people in the world more ingenious than the Chinese at every aft of counterfeiting, and in a country subere crinte of this character is so difficult of detection, and in which the authorities are so weak and corrupt, any comage must always stand a poor chance of establishing confidence. So we find one of the shrewdest should be urged upon the Chinese Government n connection with the revision of the Treaty. but it will not do to be too sanguino with regard to it. - We, of course, cannot force the Chinese Government to establish a new coinage, as the matter is one clearly under their shop. He then called police constable 523, meet her at Quaha: She placed the matter in own jurisdiction, and it is to be feared for the reasons above given that they will not moverit the matter, unless almost forced to to introduce one throughout the given $1 to go and purchase the plant, and in the New York Times; may be feared that the moment the Chinese officials had to do with the matter, some kind feiting be probably over more dicouraged. It would seem, in fact, that the morrest solution which could be arrived at was that which has unfortunately been abandoned b the closing of the Hongkong Mint of making on-the spot in such quantities as may from time to time be required; and at cannot but so speedily given up.....

Lo-a-fook, a water-coolie, was churged with busing a Portuguese woman, named Francisca J. Antonio, residing in Mosque-street. Complainant said that defendant got her two buckets of water per day; yesterday the losendant abused ber, using filthy names, and took her hand to draw her into the street. Defendant denied the abuse, and said he only took her hand to bring her to the station, to have a settlement of 70 cents, due to him for Fined 25 cents.

UNLAWFUL POSSESSION. Koo-a-yoong, a bouse coolie, in Caine-road was charged by P.C. No. 5, with the unlawful ppraession of 6 lbs. of gram. Complainant slated that he observed the defendant carrying something in a concealed manner, and on asking what he had, found it to be gram. The defendant, said he was going to ake the grain to Mr. Phillipe's bead-man. H was a servant to Mr. Green.

His Worship-But you told the constable the night previous you were going to take the gramto the house coolie of Mr. Phillips, of the bank, Constable stated further that defendant on the road to the station tried to spill all the gram ; he succeeded in spilling some.

His Worship told defendant that had he evidence to prove he stole the grain-from his muster, he would send him to six months' hard abor. He, however, was morally sure the gram was his muster's, and that he had stolen He was on a good salary and was well fer and to increase his funds be stole the grani from his master's horse, depriving it of food. If the horse every time the attempted to steal his food gave him a kick; that is to say, had the sense to do it, he would perhaps get a lesson shown him. If any person stole one grain of rice from him, he would be the first to kick the hief, and the first to give the thief into custody, larging him with it. He would, however, inflict the highest populty he could on him; and trusted that if there were any horse-conlies in Court, they would benefit by the remarks and the sentence he was about to impose! The train left Euston Station at eight o'clock, or according to some accounts five minutes later. | China Traders' Insurance Company ashareson Friday night. It was a very heavy train, composed of twenty-two carringes, three yans, and two engines. The train was for Scotland. seventeen of the carringes being destined for the more northern parts of that country, and the others for Glasgow and Edinburgh and the neighbouring places. Shortly after one o'clock | China Fire Insurance Company's Shares-$129 on Saturday morning the train approached Wigan, having then, it is said, only one empty compartment. The signals showed "all right it appears, as the train neared Wigner. Within a few yards of the down platform the accident occurred. There the train had to pass two "points," leading to a loop-line, which "rans a the back of the platform, and is used principally for local trains. . The two engines, and the carriages intended for the north of Scotland passed over in safety, but the remaining portion of the train got somehow off the line, plunged. in upon the platform, and was smashed by contract with the station buildings. The terrible impetus given to the severed carriages when they torothemselves, or were jorked inway from the body of the train drove their along the siding, sent them crashing on to the platform as if they had leaped there, and left then at last shapeless and shattered maong the walls and the buildings. It would be needless to say that there was a beavy destruction of life and hideously varied amount of injury. MAD POETS, Christopher Smart, who, after a brilliant career at Cambridge, translated the Psalme. Phodrus, and Horace into prose, and published a collection of nooms, through pecuniary embarrassments and other mortilications; became deranged; and continued in "this condition, with intervals of sanity, till his death in 1770, in the rules of the King's Bench. During his confinement he wrote, by means of a key, on the panels of his chamber, a poem of nearly a hundred stanzas to the "Glory of David, King and Prophet." Here is one of his verses :--

Of all the seed sown, that scattered in the Grecian Archipelago was the first to flower. The long boot-shaped strip of land abovenext followed in the production of the social plant. And as these bright and precocious, but not deeply-rooted, ones gradually dwindled and sank, the wave of fructification still moved on, and Spain and France already in the middle and modernages are in full blossom. Yet in the northern fields there is still only rank weedy growth. Now for the first time, and after long and painful preparation, it is England and Germany which are in flower. The live great European flowers are alike in many respects, and in many they are different; they offer the best examples on a grand scale of the power of culture, habit, and circumstances in modifying and changing those qualities and tendencies which spring up spontaneously in the organism, an inheritance from common parents. The slow and sombro Teuton and the "nlert and epirituelle Italian of to-day, but a short time ago were brothers, and together tended the flocks upon the plateau of Iran. It is the North Sea and the Mediterraneau Sea that have thus changed them, until in character they seem the very antipodes. From "Mother Earth's Biography," by Wallace

A PRAIRIE STORM. On the open prairie, when just well away from the Hudson's Bay Company's store, we saw that we were in for a storm. Every form of beauty was combined in the sky at this time. To the south it was such a blue as Tition leved to paint : blue, those who have seen only dull English skies say is nowhere to be seen but on canvas or beaven; and the blue was bordered to the west with vast billowy mountains of the softest, fleecost white. Next to that, and right ahead of us, and overboad, was a swollen black cloud, along the under surface of which greyer masses were eddying at a around the north and east; the expanse was convent rates. a dun-coloured mass livid with lightning, and there, to the right, and behind us, torrouts of rain were pouring, and nearing us every moment. The atmosphere was charged with electricity on all sides, lightning rushed towards the earth in straight and zigzag currents, and the thunder varied from the sharp rattle of musketry to the roar artillery: still there was no rain and bu little wind. We pressed on for a house, not far away; but there was to be no escape. With the suddenness of a tornado the wind struck us at first without rain-but so tierce that the horses were forced again and again off the track.
